

FARKLE

GAME MANUAL + SCORE SHEET

ANETTA G. HELLER

WHAT'S IT ALL ABOUT...

Farkle is a simple dice game that involves scoring points by rolling dice and forming point combinations. The game can be played by two or more players, and the goal is to reach a predetermined number of points, usually 10,000.

Farkle is a game that combines elements of chance and strategy. Players must choose between continuing to roll for more points and risking losing their accumulated points if they do not score any scoring dice. The game is popular because of its simplicity and ease, while still providing a challenge for players.

In Farkle, each player rolls six dice on their turn. The scoring combinations for the dice are presented on the next page along with a new score sheet template.

IVAN serves as the game organizer, ensuring the smooth operation of this dice game.

DID YOU KNOW THAT...

- ... the game is played between two or more players.
- On each turn, a player rolls all six dice. All scoring dice are set aside, and the player can decide whether to end their turn and score the accumulated points or continue rolling the remaining dice.
- On each turn, a player rolls all six dice. All scoring dice are set aside, and the player can decide whether to end their turn and score the accumulated points or continue rolling the remaining dice.
- If the player does not score any points on their roll, they lose the accumulated points for that turn and the next player's turn begins.
- After each turn, the player must record their points on a score sheet. The turn then passes to the next player in a clockwise direction.
- The game continues until one player reaches the predetermined point total, usually 10,000, and is declared the winner.
